The Carmel Pine Cone

50th Year, No. 1 P.O. Box G-1 THURSDAY, JANUARY 2, 1964 Ph. 624-3881 Price 15c

Santa Claus has come and gone. The echoes of his visit — the toy engine clanging, the dolly crying "Mama," the fluffy teddy bear squeaking in tiny hands, will linger for months to come. On Tuesday night chimes and toasts, glowing tapers and gaiety rang out the old year and heralded the new, 1964. To parents everywhere this new year is a challenge. Certainly every one of us must pray, each in his own way, for better years, peaceful years ahead for the toddlers of today. Let us hope and plan and work — to keep alight the most beautiful of all lights in this world, the faith in the future that shines in the eyes of children.

Heather was born November 28, 1962. She really wasn't interested in that Christmas Day. But this year! Her amazement and glee were unbounded. She is the daughter of the John M. Thompsons of Carmel.

Barry O'Connor Rudolph, age 21 months, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Rudolph (Constance O'Connor) and he has plenty to think about. There's a new baby in the house! His sister Teresa was born in August. Maybe next Christmas she will be claiming his toys!! Barry lives in Carmel Valley.

Clayton B. Neill III, the only son of the Clayton B. Neills, Jr., is the man in charge when Daddy isn't home. There's big sister Kathy, who is eight, Kimberley who is three, and the tiniest, Kerry, just three months old. No wonder Clayton III, who is two-and-a-half, asserts, along with Daddy, "It still is a man's world-

Kate Young-Hunter Rider is the two-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Frederick and Marcia (Kuster) Rider, and the granddaughter of Gabrielle and the late Edward Gerhard Kuster. We suspect that she is the namesake of Shakespeare's tempestuous "Kate," but, so far, her mother claims, she is "angelic."

Jane Tyrell Albert Spotlighted in 'Seventeen'

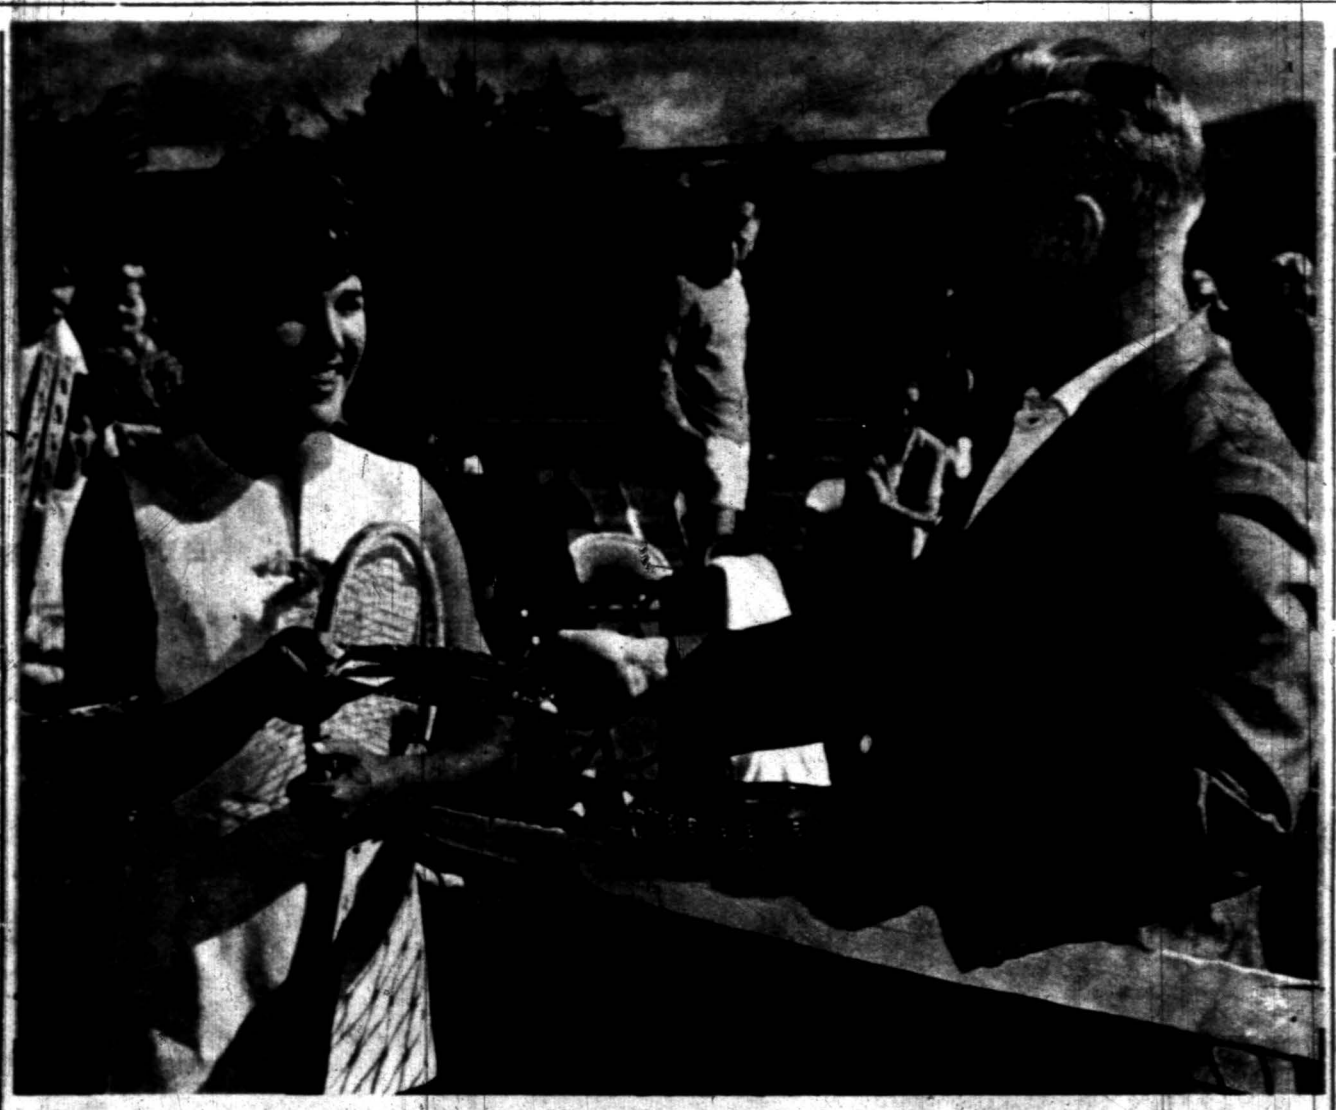
Home for the holidays and rushing from one party to another are the three daughters of the Frank C. Alberts of Pebble Beach, Nancy who is a junior at Stanford, Jane, who is a freshman and Nancy, who is 11 and attends Santa Catalina School for Girls.

Especially starry-eyed is Jane who achieves national recognition in the January Seventeen Magazine, on the newsstands now.

Janie, according to the teen publication's "Teen Scene" forecast for 1964, is someone "to watch at Wimbledon. She says: 'I want to be Number One woman in tennis. I give myself until I'm 21. If I don't make it, well—I won't play just to be playing.'"

The Stanford University freshman is a 1963 honor graduate of the Santa Catalina School for Girls where she was active in all sports and was president of the honor society and a member of the National Honor Society. A semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship exam, the coed also received her school's award for outstanding work in physics.

At college, Janie is on the girls' tennis team. She plans to major in either psychology or sociology and is interested in a diplomatic service career.



Seventeen-year-old Janie Albert, of Riata Road, Pebble Beach, is someone "to watch at Wimbledon," according to the January "You the Reader" issue of Seventeen Magazine (on newsstands now) which spotlights the tennis ace in "The Teen Scene: Forecast for 1964."

Thanks to the good offices of Carmel Valley Outlook, the PINE CONE this week is being printed by the offset process. We hope you like it.

Feathers . . . From the Shaft

No. 37

By Harry the Fletcher

Oh I'm up to my ears in confusion and tears, surrounded by wreckage and trouble; for the bright Christmas toys for our dear girls and boys were quickly reduced to sad rubble.

There's wagons with wheels off, and paint that just peels off the faces of dolls in collisions. There's cruisers with bruises and bikes with abuses, and footballs with fatal incisions.

So grandpas with hammers respond to the clamors with rivets and wire and some stickum; they are fixed good as new, for these are the boys who exhibit the patience to fixum.

Too bad this must end, for there's no one to mend the toys that we grown-ups have busted. If we can't take the shocks when we go on the rocks, there's no magical Gramps to be trusted.

Confucius he say there's no night without day; no grandpa — no child has a mother; but man wishes wealth must stand on himself; success — him not grandpa nor brother.

Story of Handel's Messiah

Of all the music associated with the Christmas season, perhaps no composition so well embodies the spirit of the holiday as Handel's "Messiah." The great oratorio has enthralled countless audiences. It has been said to have brought more money for charity than any other single piece of music. And it marked a rebirth for its composer.

George Frederick Handel was virtually a has-been in 1741. London had grown tired of his Italian operas and of him. More than once he had barely missed being thrown into debtors' prison, and his health was beginning to fail.

Then came a commission from the lord lieutenant of Ireland and the governors of three charitable institutions for Handel to conduct a series of charity concerts, reports World Book Encyclopedia. He began to compose a new piece for the tour.

Handel was not an especially religious man, but something seemed to possess him as he worked. For some 23 days he kept to his study, refusing to see any visitors, leaving his food untouched and working through the night. Now he played the harpsichord, now he sang, then back to the writing. His servants thought he was going mad. Often they found him in tears. When he finished the "Hallelujah Chorus," he declared, "I did think I did see all Heaven before me, and the great God himself."

On April 13, 1742, 700 people crowded into a Dublin music hall for the premiere of "Messiah." It was a resounding success.

At the first English performance a year later, King George II was so overwhelmed by the "Hallelujah Chorus" that he rose from his seat and stood throughout the section. The audience, of course, followed the example of their king, and so began a custom which survives to our day.

Despite the king's appreciation, however, London was not ready to accept Handel and the concert failed. It was not until Handel began directing annual benefit performances of "Messiah" at the London Foundling Hospital in the 1750's that his adopted countrymen came to recognize it as a masterpiece, and once again gave his their acclaim.

Hospital Beautification

Seven magnolias have just been planted at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula in the continuing landscaping program.

The trees, each 10 to 12 feet tall, have been placed in the planters at the main entryway to the hospital. Their shape is in accordance with the architect's plan of four years ago.

In addition, two small oak trees and some shrubs have been planted in a recently developed small triangular park off the Carmel-Pacific Grove road where the hospital sign is located.

James Smith of Monterey, Council Camping and Activities chairman announced today.

The event normally a sellout is filling rapidly. Heading, what is expected to be the largest group ever to participate in this annual winter sports activity, is Winter Camp chairman, Eugene Rowley, of Santa Cruz.

William J. Lidderdale, assistant Scout executive is camp director, assisted by other members of the professional Scouting staff.

Departure will be immediately after school, Friday, January 10 so that as much of the trip as possible can be made in day light hours. Return home trip will be Sunday evening, Jan. 12. Special permission has been received from the National Council to permit limited travel after dark, according to Rowley. Transportation will be by passenger automobiles provided by volunteer Scout leaders and parents of boys. Buses, pickups, and trucks are not permitted. Each Scout troop and Explorer unit is providing its own adult volunteer leadership and transportation. Eligibility rules are up to each individual Scout unit. The Council requires that a boy to be eligible to attend winter camp be registered in Scouting and have the ability to take care of himself in the open, have a cooperative attitude, and be physically fit.

Program will include: skiing, ice skating, sledding, hikes to historical places, visit to museum, campfire and movie. Cost is $11.00 for each boy and adult, which provides two nights lodging in heated cabins and five meals at Yosemite cafeteria. Spending money for meals enroute, rental of winter sports equipment and other items is extra.

The Big Sur Roundup, Big Sur's monthly newspaper, begins its ninth year of publication this month. The women's auxiliary of the Grange, the H.E.C., published the first issue in 1955, to serve as a means of communicating with members and friends of the Grange, who lived in remote areas and/or were without a telephone to keep in touch with happenings in the community. At first the paper was circulated without charge but its popularity increased and now there is a small charge to cover cost of paper, printing and postage. The Big Sur Roundup now reaches over three hundred families and friends, many of whom live outside of the Big Sur area. All the work of news gathering and putting the unique newspaper together is donated by the Grange members.

Canavarro - Seamon Nuptials Solemnized

Maria Therese de Souza Canavarro of Pebble Beach became the bride of Lt. Frederic William Seamon III, USA, at High Noon Saturday, December 28, at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The Solemn High Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Reverend Roger J. Dieudonne, assisted by the Reverend Emeric Doman and the Reverend Gerard Lasko. The Alma College Choir, conducted by Father Joseph McGuire, sang before the service and the Mass.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Kim de Souza Canavarro of Pebble Beach, has four brothers and a sister, all taking part in the nuptials. Gregory served at the altar, Dominic was ring bearer, Maria Elisa was flower girl, Nicholas acted as best man and Antonio gave his sister's hand in marriage.

The pretty dark haired bride chose a heavy Spanish brocade gown in an ivory shade made with a bell skirt and a chapel train. A was an heirloom from India. Spanish lace mantilla which she brought from Granada covered her hair, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Sara Bevilacqua of Monterey, the maid of honor, wore a floor length crimson satin gown, matching veiling in her hair and carried white roses. Maria Elise, the bride's young sister, wore a full length ivory taffeta frock for her flower girl duties and carried garnet roses.

The bride's brother, Nicholas Canavarro, served as best man and seating the guests were Charles Korman of Berkeley, William Casey of Chico, and George Lutzy of Encino.

Following the service a reception was held at "Villa Cypress" the Canavarro home on the 17-Mile-Drive, where the receiving line formed in front of an antique Spanish brocade hanging. The rooms were decorated with white chrysanthemums and stock.

The silver wedding cup used by the couple to toast their future

Following a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination the couple will be at home in Frankfort, Germany, by the end of January, where they expect to remain for two years. At the termination of his Army duty, the new benedict will be associated with the State Department in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. George Canavarro came from Tucson to attend her granddaughter's wedding, and Gregory Canavarro's godmother, Miss Anna Silva, traveled from Boston for the nuptials.

The bride is a graduate of Santa Catalina School for Girls and Dominican College in San Rafael, following which she has traveled extensively in Europe.

Lt. Seamon, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic William Seamon, came from Ocean City, New Jersey, for the wedding, is a graduate of Notre Dame.

The bride's gown was of French organza and alencon lace. Her veil of French illusion was held by a looped crown of tiny pearls. She carried white butterfly roses and white hyacinths with baby ivy.

Her maid of honor was Miss Colleen Wylie of Sacramento whose cocktail length frock of cranberry red brocade and bouquet of white carnations and red roses matched that of the bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Ann Korth of Westchester.

The Sur Coast

By ELIZABETH FULLER JONES

A time of travel and reunion has been the happy experience of members of the well-known, pioneer Post family of Big Sur, for the past several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Post, Sr. flew to the Hawaiian Islands and the day following Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fleenor (Mary Post Fleenor) flew to Ohio for a family reunion. The senior Posts, on arrival in the Islands, spent a few days in Honolulu, sight-seeing, enjoying the beach, experiencing a luau feast, and relaxing before beginning a limousine and plane tour of the outer islands. The first they visited was Kauai, where one of the highlights was a river boat trip up to the famed fern grotto and another to the Waimea Canyon, referred to as the "little grand canyon of the Pacific." The days spent on the Island of Hawaii were equally enjoyable. They took a leisurely drive along the Kona Coast to the town of Hilo and spent happy hours visiting the orchid farms, and an especially interesting and thrilling excursion on a glass bottom boat where they viewed coral divers.

What did the Posts enjoy most about their Island vacation? That would be difficult to say, they said, so filled was each day with joy and new discovery, but Mr. and Mrs. Post agreed that perhaps what they loved most was the music and the flowers. Every evening, and day too, they were entertained with song and dance that pleased and delighted them. The lush growth, and abundance of flowers were particularly noticed and appreciated, by the Posts for one of their special pastimes through the years has been the growing of flowers in the many gardens on the vast Post's Rancho Sierra Mar in Big Sur. On the island of Hawaii, the abundance and the beauty of the wild bougainvillaea, in purple, red, orange, pink and white and the single, double and ever triple poinsettia, in cream color orange, purple and the conventional red, will long be remembered.

While Mr. and Mrs. Post were exploring the islands in the Pacific, the Hugh Fleenors were visiting with Mr. Fleenor's sisters and families, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Buck and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dock in Celina, Ohio. During their visit 35 relatives and friends gathered for a family reunion on Thanksgiving Day. After their visit in the Ohio town the Fleenor's drove West, via US 66, and stopped in Las Vegas for a few days. There they were joined by Mary Post Fleenor's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. "Bill" Post of Goleta and a nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dock of Fontana.

"Misalliance" a Success

A New Year's Eve audience, definitely in the mood for uninvolved entertainment, crowded the Golden Bough Circle Theatre to capacity on Tuesday's opening night presentation of George Bernard Shaw's "Misalliance."

Written in 1912 (50 years ago) it was undoubtedly the amusing shocker of the era. Beneath the caustic wit, Shaw's socialistic views and his crusade for moral freedom for women, that lasted through all his life, must have won argument as well as applause from pre-world war 1 audiences.

It has been said that, decades later, GBS stated that "Misalliance" was for him the favorite of all his plays. Certainly he blasts the inhibited, he blasts the stuffy hypocrisy and the class snobbishness of the new century. In getting across his "message" the Shavian wit keeps the audience in a continuously gleeful state.

The Circle Theatre performance was superb! Director, Ted Huffman, responsible for the cutting of the much too long original script as well as the pacing of the amazingly long monologues and the meshing of characters, has done a highly professional job.

It is obvious that Huffman and Circle Theatre Director Fred Rider "scoured" the Peninsula for types—and they found them. There are no "small" parts in "Misalliance." The success of the whole rested upon each of the nine characters, and this reviewer finds it a task to pick leads.

Rosamond Goodrich was breathtakingly beautiful. Her sustained characterization of the lovable, ruthless, spoiled, logical, man-hungry, free thinking woman of her day was, we thought, the best performance she has given in the Circle to date, and that is saying quite a lot.

The two other feminine roles were in the hands of two of the Peninsula's favorites. Professional actress Ruth Marion McElroy (fortunately for us home in Carmel for a time) was a delight as the managing, "sensible," scatter-brain wife of the draper who had made good. A comethene of long experience, she gave a polished, easy performance.

Startling, handsome as all get out in her midnight black leather flying togs, Marcia Hovick as the free - thinking Polish aristocrat (with a wonderful accent) wowed the audience as well as her fellow thespians.

John Boles as the draper, come up in the world, and Dick Bird as his son might have come straight from Hindhead, Surrey, their interpretation of the stodgy British-er, always in the right, were flawless.

In truly comic contract were the performances of John Cooke as a retired governor of a Crown colony, not above a —bit of dechevous tom-foolery, and John Goldring as his bird-minded son given to adolescent tantrums. Their impersonations won howls of laughter from the opening night audience.

Robert Floeter, Jr., played his romantic role of the handsome intellectual, whose whirlwind courtship of the free-thinking young heroine provided heart thrills to the delighted satisfaction of the audience.

To Fred Rider — laurels, as the under-dog clerk (clark in London-ese). Beaten down, sniffling with the courage of the British lion, bent upon redeeming "his poor dead mother's 'onor," Fred Rider as "Gunner" gives the touch of melodrama dear to the heart of the great playwright.

The Shaw production at the Circle is not to be missed. It is rare entertainment, on a high plane, professionally presented.

Letters . . . to The Editor

Editor,
The Carmel Pine Cone

Why did the Library Board approve of the City Council placing a phone booth in front of the finest public building in Carmel? Is it a necessity to have phone booths on Ocean Avenue? There are pay phones in hotels, motels, and our numerous filling stations, all centrally located.

(Mrs.) Aimee Charlton

Editor,
The Carmel Pine Cone

Back in the beginning of the second quarter of the century, the Harrison family, one known for its warm culture, learning, appreciation of art and architecture, and generous in its civic interest, prepared the way for the laying of the cornerstone of our Carmel Library in 1927.

For thirty-seven years, this gracious building has stood as a model of good taste and architectural design for the transient visitor. For the resident it has stood as his symbol of the 'love-of-beauty' characteristic of the village of Carmel, in its quiet harmony of structure in its setting of horticultural charm.

SHADES OF THE HARRISONS — Today as we approach the southwest corner of the Library plot, sad to behold, our eye is affronted with a symbol of the "arty" commercial, a public telephone booth, rigged up in "arty" motif presumably to appeal to the cheap and vulgar, certainly to those of no horticultural sensibilities.

That cultivated Carmelites might ever have to suffer the machinations of a Library Board having no better sense of the fitness of such commercial imposition on premises so revered, is hard to believe.

In expressing my surprise to a friend of mine, interested in the history and tradition of Carmel, he replied that it should not be surprising, that at one time he had contemplated bequests of six figures to the library, but on observing the Board ineptitude had reduced his bequest to one of four or five figures, and that on being apprised of this last ineptitude, thought that he would withdraw all bequests.

I would suggest that the time may have come for our little Village to take a closer look at this insensitive Board in the hopes of improving it at the next opportunity. The Pine Cone might be of help in such a matter. We could hope so.

Very truly,
C. Austin De Camp

New Community Church Now at Hacienda Carmel

Beginning next Sunday, Jan. 5, the new Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its Worship Services in the Casa Fiesta Room of the Hacienda Carmel, Carmel Valley Road, at 10:30 o'clock. The need for a different meeting place is occasioned by the increase in membership of the new church, which now numbers two hundred and twenty-five.

Arrangements have been made for Dr. Ronald J. Menmuir to continue as minister of the new church until June 1, when he and his family will start a sabbatical year, most of which is to be spent abroad. The first stop will be England, and will be continued by automobile through Europe with special visits to Greece, Egypt, the Holy Land and the Middle East, before a four-months sojourn in India. Return to the Monterey Peninsula will be by way of Australia, the family home of Dr. Menmuir.

The January meeting of the Woman's Association will be held in the Casa Fiesta Room of the Hacienda, beginning at one P.M., Tuesday, Jan. 7. At two o'clock P.M. the Association will hear a lecture by Dr. Menmuir on the topic, "Hinduism and Christianity —Some Comparisons." Residents of the Hacienda have been invited to attend the lecture, which will be followed by a social hour, to be hosted by members of the Association's Suzanna Circle.

RELUCTANT ARCHER

Life lights me many lamps, but of them all
Your own burns brightest. How its beam illumes
The honest word, how that white glare consumes
My devious shadows, leaving not one small
Evasion-mote to dim the dazzle here!
You let me see your candid speech is more
Intensely kind than the kindness that, before
Would mask my thought in compliments, through fear
Of candor wounding. Where your lamp is lit
My silken lies appear effrontery,
Your steel truth, a quite subtle flattery —
Yet there is hurt in the flashing brunt of it,
And now you ask I loose this barbed word
For you . . . If only truth might answer blurred!

SONNET

From papers, mouths of men and over the air
Pours endless news of scandal, turmoil, strife,
Here and abroad, on the round globe everywhere.
War being the one ingredient of life;
Until, sometimes, with all my weary heart,
I wish that I might leave this sordid world,
On whose each noisy, overpopulous part
The scarlet flags of friction are unfurled.
But if I found such an Arcadian land,
Whose weather was so filled with peace and calm
No man in wrath would raise his voice or hand
In days and nights that fairly dripped with balm,
Could I, whose veins are tinged with friction too,
Endure life under such a halcyon blue?

THE MATCHLESS MAPLES

A passion of pageantry begins the Fall.
Each dropped leaf more glorious than the last,
each flaming season reminding that God has passed!
Showing nature's endless arrangement with beauty,
its shimmery jewels, its fiery prisms of color,
its revelling reds, startling candles of joy,
are seen through sunlight to shock the sudden sight!

Like its fading with season greens,
its melting-the-heart gold, its scarlets,
the queens of forest fire maples, seen once the year draws close and trees flaunt Autumn's flags.

On wings of light, released and free.

Far beyond the ships of space,

Only love for friend or foe.

While your heart will beat at one
With the shining of that sun.

REVIEWED BY HARRY WELLESLEY FLETCHER

The Wanderer, A Strange Story of a Mixed-up Man

WANDERER, by Sterling Hayden, an autobiography, published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York. At the Bookworm Shop on Dolores at Fifth.

The modern way to write a novel and to avoid the pitfalls of dullness, as followed in this autobiography, is to separate the chapters, throw them in a hat and stir well; throw them out the window and then rush downstairs to catch them as they come drifting down, labeling them Chapter 1, 2, 3, and so on, regardless of beginning, end or middle.

This the publishers have done for Sterling Hayden, keeping the reader thoroughly mystified as to time, relation of facts, or sequence of events.

This reviewer is still rather hazy as to whether the author ran away to Tahiti before he quit the movies or afterward. And which of his many loves was the mother of his children.

The book makes good reading, if one doesn't mind the lusty, seafaring language, salty epithets in the now common four letter word. The descriptions of life on a Gloucester sea trawler, fishing the Newfoundland Banks for 60 cents an hour, are exciting and picturesque and entertaining.

But it is when the author tells about running out on movie contracts paying him in the hundreds of thousands of dollars — that's when the reader begins to lose patience in a man who is dying to make enough money to buy his own boat. It looks like Sterling Hayden wants it handed to him on a silver platter without any return obligations, a dangerous piece of propaganda for our already overpampered juveniles. The world owes nobody a living, as most of us have long ago discovered. It is nothing new that a man would like to sail the south seas in his own schooner, live the lush life on some tropical sward with a bevy of gorgeous females. Most of us just dream about it, like going to Mars for a week-end trip. But not author Hayden. He buys his boat and takes off on borrowed money, regardless of what happens when the piper has to be paid off.

It is a good book for adults to read leisurely, if only for the sense of balance one derives from it, plus the implied assurance that we can achieve peace and happiness without running away to sea or throwing up lucrative jobs, or even sacrificing all sense of purpose in life. Somehow most men seem to have solved the problem of dealing with life and responsibilities without going "beatnik," and this is a healthy thing to reflect upon, because a world full of Sterling Hayden's just wouldn't do. Read the book and see for yourself.

Never A Dull Moment For the George Walkers

Even more than usual, holiday life has been a merry romp in the old red house on the hill-in-the-woods — the George Walker home at Crespi and Flanders Way.

House guests, enjoying every moment of 'getting lost' in the unexpected hidden rooms, grinding coffee in a real grinder, eating Patty Walker's early American recipe triumphs, were Patty's lifelong friends, Mr. and Mrs. Rand Hollenback of Columbus, Ohio.

Because Mr. Hollenback is the publisher-editor of two community weeklies in Ohio, The Herald and The Booster, the Walkers included, in the entertainment of their guests, a visit to The Pine Cone editorial offices and press rooms. Following inspection and shop talk with the Pine Cone publisher the party took Literary Editor Harry Fletcher off to dinner in the Walker home.

With the Hollenbacks' departure for the south yesterday, the Walker family, including Kathleen, Jeffrey, Rebecca and Carolyn, left with their father and mother for a long week-end of skiing at Yosemite.

Monterey's Mayor George Clemens and Col. Richard J. Long, commandant of the Defense Language Institute, West Coast branch, discuss the historical plaque commemorating the fire of 1924.

Discovery of Plaque Recalls the '24 Fire

Recollections of Monterey's colorful past have been revived with the recent discovery of a plaque given by the city to commemorate soldiers of the Presidio of Monterey who fought the disastrous oil fire of 1924.

The silver plaque was found in a local building recently demolished and was turned over to Mayor George M. Clemens by Mr. Don Noggle. The mayor then sent it to Col. Richard J. Long, commandant of the Defense Language Institute, West Coast Branch, now quartered at the Presidio of Monterey, as an item of historical value.

The fire which prompted the original award of the plaque began on Sunday morning, Sept. 14, 1924, when lightning ignited one of six 55,000-barrel-capacity oil tanks that had just been filled. Firemen were unable to control the blaze, and in the afternoon moisture in the bottom of the tank caused it to boil over the top. The walls of the tank collapsed sending burning oil flowing through the streets and into Monterey Bay.

The fire continued for three days burning a total of 10 crude oil and gasoline tanks. Everything from Lighthouse Ave. to Reeside Ave. and from Lighthouse Ave. to the bay was destroyed.

As many as 700 soldiers from the 11th Cavalry and the 76th Field Artillery stationed at the Presidio fought alongside 800 or more civilians against the fire which is estimated to have caused more than $3 million damage. At least two soldiers are known to have died, along with an undetermined number of civilians.

Col. Long accepted the plaque from Mayor Clemens with the assurance that it will be properly displayed and expressed hope that other citizens will be motivated to donate to the DLIWC any items of historical value to the Presidio of Monterey. Mayor Clemens offered his personal support to such a collection.
